ARTIFICIAL PEARLS.

A JAPANESE INDUSTRY.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCE.

An article on Japanese artificially induced pearls appears in Nature. The author is Dr. H. Lyster Jameson, the greatest authority in England on pearls and mother-of-pearl fisheries. He passed some considerable part of his life in investigating the fisheries of the Persian Gulf and Papua, in Australia. He is now technical adviser on in-shore fisheries to the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries and to the Development Commission of the Treasury. One thing is clear from his illuminating article: To distinguish a Japanese cultured pearl from a natural one it is, at present, necessary to break it up. And another thing, if the Japanese process is improved according to Dr. Jameson's suggestions, and is transplanted to Australia or to the Persian Gulf, there is every reason to expect that a pearl may be produced by artificial cultivation equal to that which the oyster supplies by natural inducement.

For some years (says Dr. Lyster Jameson) Mr. K. Mikimoto, the pioneer in the application of scientific knowledge to the pearl oyster on a commercial scale, has been producing in Japan, and selling under the name of "Mikimoto pearls," pearls of this description. There was no secret about this. Mr. Mikimoto not only sold them as artificially-produced pearls, but also published in one of his catalogues a short description and diagram explaining his process.

For many years Mr. Mikimoto experimented with a view to the production of a complete pearl, not attached to the shell, by a modification of this process, and about 1912, as announced by me at the Dundee meeting of the British Association in that year, from information supplied to me by Mr. K. Ikeda, one of Mr. Mikimoto's staff, in a letter from Tokio dated May 30th 1914, it appears that the first considerable crop of these "round cultivated pearls" was harvested in the autumn of 1913. Their production is now an important part of the original Japanese industry.

Apart from the purely financial question as to the degree to which the advent of artificially-induced pearls is likely to affect the price of natural pearls, two questions seem to have been agitating the public: Are these products "pearls"? and Can a test be devised by which, without destroying them, they can be distinguished from pearls of natural origin? Of course, when a slice is cut across a natural pearl and a Mikimoto pearl the distinction is obvious. A natural pearl, except in those (in my experience exceptional) cases where a nucleus of foreign origin and of sufficient size to be identified (such as a grain of sand) is present, consists throughout of concentrically deposited layers, which differ in degree of transparency or opacity in different specimens. The Mikimoto pearl, in its outer layers, has the same structure as the natural pearl, but has an artificially-manufactured bead of mother-of-pearl composed of flat parallel laminae of nacre in its centre.

METHOD OF PRODUCTION.

The method by which Mr. Mikimoto produces these pearls has been patented by him in Japan and other countries, and an application for a British patent has already been filed, and is open for inspection at the Patent Office. Now, Mr. Mikimoto's success is based on the fact, which follows from my work in 1902, and which was further demonstrated by Alverdes's remarkable experiments ten years later, that it is not the presence of an irritating intrusive body that determines the formation of a pearl, but the presence in the sub-epidermal tissues of which is not continuous with the secreting surface of the epidermis which lays down the shell; and that unless this epidermal sac is introduced by transplantation (as in Alverdes's and Mikimoto's methods), or is induced by specific stimulation of a particular kind of parasite (as in the pearls in Mytilus caused by the trematode Gymnophallus), or arises by some still unknown cause or causes (as in the Ceylon pearl oyster), no irritating body introduced into the shell or tissues can be expected to become the nucleus of a pearl. From the biological aspect there are two classes of pearly bodies. The trade distinguishes different kinds of pearls according to shape and size (fine pearls, baroque pearls, seed pearls, etc.), just as biologists distinguish certain classes according to where they arise (parenchyma, or mantle pearls, muscle pearls), or to the kind of shell material of which they are composed (nacreous pearls, columnar pearls, hyostracum pearls, periostracum pearls, hinge pearls). All these classes, some valuable, some worthless, are, from the biological point of view, pearls. Biologically speaking, the Mikimoto pearl satisfies all the conditions which go to make up a pearl as defined above. It differs from a natural pearl only in that it contains a foreign nucleus larger than any foreign nucleus which I have so far encountered in a natural pearl, and in that this nucleus is a bead of mother-of-pearl such as does not occur in nature. Both these points could easily be remedied. A smaller nucleus could be introduced; the nucleus might be removed after grafting the sac in the oyster; or a small natural pearl of inferior quality, or a concentrically crystallised bead of carbonate of lime, could be used as nucleus. A trade in the worthless pearls of Mytilus might even be revived for this purpose; according to Garner they were once exported from this country to China for the manufacture of "medicine." The somewhat greater transparency, on the average, of Mikimoto pearls, when compared with the natural pearls, could be remedied by either of these processes.

SCIENTIFIC INVESTIGATION.

With regard to the question of distinguishing the Mikimoto pearl without cutting it, much vague talk as to scientific investigations has appeared in the daily Press. Some of these investigations remind me of the little boy who, having learned that trains were propelled by steam, lighted a fire in his gas-car, put a kettle on it, and expected it to run by itself. Undoubtedly experienced pearl merchants, and, indeed, any zoologist who is familiar with the shells of the different species and geographical races of pearl and mother-of-pearl oysters, can usually distinguish pearls from the Japanese pearl oyster (Margaritifera Martensii) from the pearls of other species, just as they can distinguish Ceylon, Australian, Central American, etc., pearls from each other by slight differences in colour and lustre; but this test only reveals that the pearls come from the Japanese pearl oyster, and cannot be used to distinguish naturally and artificially-produced Japanese pearls from each other; and it would be useless for distinguishing pearls produced by the Japanese process in other species of pearl oysters from pearls naturally produced by the same species. This natural difference is greatly intensified when the pearls are examined in ultra-violet light, for which purpose an apparatus has been designed and is already on the market. I hope shortly to be able to examine some naturally-produced Japanese pearls with this apparatus. I anticipate that they will agree with the artificially-produced Japanese pearls, and not with natural pearls from other localities, as this test, like the rule-of-thumb test based on the general colour and lustre, appears to depend on the minute differences in the structure of the nacre in different species and races of pearl oysters.

The behaviour of polarised light when passed through sections of the natural and the Mikimoto pearl respectively was a foregone conclusion from our knowledge of the structure of their centres. When examined with polarised light between crossed Nicols, the section of a natural pearl, of course, shows throughout the cross of extinction characteristic of concentrically crystallised bodies (except in those parts which are too opaque to transmit light). A section of a Mikimoto pearl, on the other hand, shows the four arms of the cross in the outer part, which is concentrically laid down; but the mother-of-pearl bead appears alternately dark and light as the slide is rotated, according as the part of the exterior to which its laminae are parallel is a dark or a light sector. Mr. Braggall is not yet in a position to make a definite statement as to the practicability or otherwise of applying some modification of this process to the whole pearl. He will, of course, publish his results as soon as they are completed. However, whether or not the pearls, produced by the Mikimoto process, which are now on the market, can be distinguished from naturally-produced pearls, without destroying them, by virtue of their containing a large bead of mother-of-pearl, which behaves differently towards polarised light or towards some other variety of light, Mr. Mikimoto can easily remedy this in future by a modification of his process, such, for example, as one of those suggested above. That being so, and having in view the fact that, in the appropriate localities, Ceylon, Australian, Central American, and other varieties of pearls could be produced by the same process, it is probable that, as time goes on, more and more of the pearls coming into the market will have been produced, not by the old-fashioned methods of fishing for the "wild" pearl oyster, some of which methods have existed almost unchanged from time immemorial, but by such applications of scientific knowledge to cultivated pearl oysters as that in which Japan has given so conspicuous a lead. I imagine that a certain apparatus, alleged to be in the possession of certain pearl merchants, which is said to bring out of intensifying these natural distinctions. But, so far as I know, no man of science who is familiar with the minute structure and mode of origin of pearls has seen this apparatus.

MODERN TYRANNY.

"It is a serious state of affairs that Parliament or the unions should exert such tyranny as to restrict the necessary supply of skilled labour," said Archbishop Dubhig, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Brisbane, at the laying of the foundation stone of a new presbytery at Clayfield, recently. Dr. Dubhig stated that no builder could employ more than one apprentice to every four or five journeymen or artisans. He had been given to understand that was the policy adopted by most of the unions supported by Parliament. Why should the liberty of parents and sons be so restricted. Schools were turning out an army of clerks and labourers, and when the want of skilled labour was felt they would have to send abroad for men to fill the places that should be filled by Australians. It seemed as if people escaped one class of the present wages would lay from 800 to 1,000 bricks a day. Now with double wages, he had heard, though he trusted it was not true, that the union told its members they must not lay more than 450. If that were so, and it was a generally accepted idea, then it denoted neither honesty nor efficiency.

GOLF. EARLY AMERICAN HISTORY. ESSENTIAL OF THE GAME.

America, by the win of Barnes in the national open championship, regains possession of the title which was held by Britain owing to the success of Edward Ray last year. That Barnes is an Englishman does not apparently count with America, as he entered as a representative of that country. This is perhaps understandable, especially as golf is a comparatively new game in the States, and there has only been just time for the American-born players to be seriously reckoned with. That the people in the States are leaving no stone unturned to give the players every encouragement is beyond doubt. With this end in view they are willing to pay the best price to get the leading British players to go over and teach them. When and where a game starts is always difficult to find out with any exactitude. A stick, a ball, and a mark, and there is the principle of golf fully indicated. Mr. Horace Hutchinson states that there was no golf in America when he first went there in 1887. He also states that when he returned in the following year there was not a knowledge of such a thing as a golf club or golf ball in the United States. Canada had at that time its established clubs and courses at Quebec and Montreal. The former statement is qualified by a surmise by Mr. Hutchinson that, probably, somewhere in secret places some few Scots were pursuing their national pastime on very natural courses in the States. On this second visit it had been suggested to him that he should bring some clubs over and show the people bring some clubs over and show the people what sort of a game it was. This he did. Some holes were cut in the soil with a knife, and Mr. Hutchinson proceeded to instruct them by precept and example as to what golf meant. From all accounts they did not think it meant very much. They tried shots for themselves, and the most favourable criticism obtainable was that it might be a good game for Sundays. Mr. Hutchinson is wrong, however, for Mr. Gordon C. Smith in 1887, when Mr. John Reid and Mr. Robert Lockhart, two expatriated Scotchmen, started to play the game on some pasture land near the City of Yonkers, N.Y. Ten years before that, Mr. Charles B. MacDonald had tried to introduce the game in Chicago, but made no converts, and finally gave it up in despair.

RED MEN AT PLAY.

Hunting about for statistics about the early history of American golf, the following by Mr. Henry Leach is intensely interesting: "I remember hearing several years ago a visitor to one of the reservations found several of the red men playing golf, of a kind, with real clubs and balls. 'Purple Cloud' was the champion of the braves. Then in 1903 another white wanderer looked in upon the Indians in this reservation at Montana and reported that he had witnessed a very spirited game. Golf, said he, is much better suited to the Indian of to-day than his old game of lacrosse. He noticed few subtleties in the game. When the champion, 'Spotted Horse' drove off there was a long stretch of clear prairie with only here and there a shrub, so that the game resolved itself into a chase of the ball for a couple of miles and return, the one who did it in the fewest strokes being the winner. 'He saw some really capital drives. Several well over three hundred yards, he thought. The only thing that was very new and characteristic about these red men's golf, so far as he could see, was that the spectators made a most infernal row all the time that the play was in progress. When a brave took his stance for a tee shot, it was looked upon as a signal for a perfect bedlam of yells and howling, which should have disconcerted the player, but did not do so. And with my own eyes have I seen the modern Indians playing for the American championship, and it might be claimed that though laws be made at St. Andrews, and interpretation thereof in the council chamber of the white man in New York, this, after all, in essentials, is a game that is native of the soil."

To digress for a moment from American golf, the following somewhat curious story was reported by the correspondent of a leading newsagency from Asia: "The Amer of Afghanistan has taken up golf, and finds it very good, indeed—this was in 1918—especially in these days when tennis, to which he was addicted, requires more activity than he is now capable of. It appears, however, that the ruler of Afghanistan had taken up golf two years before that time, and was more or less crazy on the game, which he had played on a course that he had made for himself at Kabul, one or two Scotsmen in the place acting as his instructors. The humbler Afghans wondered greatly at their ruler's enthusiasm for this strange pursuit, and they eventually came to the conclusion that they might turn it to some profit to themselves by placing in the holes such petitions as they had difficulty in bringing before the Amer's notice by any other means. They had observed his eagerness and determination to play his ball to these holes, and no matter what happened, he did reach them in time. At night, when it was dark, they stuffed the holes tight with their petitions in a sublime confidence that they would come before the monarch's attention when he played again in the morning. But when golfing the Amer considered himself a golfer, and not a monarch, and he was very angry when he saw these petitions in the holes. He gave orders that they were all to be burned unread, and the threat was spread that if there were any more of this sort of thing it might go badly with the necks of the

SCOTTISH SPORT. DERBYSHIRE VISITS GLASGOW. A FORFAR-PERTH DRAW.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

EDINBURGH, July 26th.
A two-days' match between Derbyshire and the West of Scotland resulted, as might be expected, in the defeat of the "chosen" team by their more experienced opponents. Where the Scotsmen failed was in the lack of combined experience, their fielding being far too weak, making presents of one or two big scores.

The most interesting game of the week was the meeting of Perthshire and Forfarshire in a Scottish Counties Championship engagement. The scoring was heavy, and the cricket of more than average quality. The outstanding personality was the Perthshire captain, W. Lovat Fraser. After he got the measure of the bowling he scored rapidly, and put together 72 before he was leg before. A. J. Stewart and Captain Ritchie also hit out well, and with the total at 271 the innings was declared closed. Forfarshire made a good reply. Buckenham led off with a capital 58, and then C. R. Claghorn laid about him, and scored 60, with the result that at the end of the day Forfarshire had scored 249 for the loss of 7 wickets. The two rivals, therefore, finished with a draw.

THE S.A.A.A. CHAMPIONSHIPS.

If asked to single out the best performance at the recent S.A.A.A. Championships, we would instantly fix upon the 51 sec. in quarter-mile by G. T. Stevenson, of Shettleston Harriers. There were other meritorious efforts, such as E. H. Liddell's 22 3/5 sec. in the 220 yards, and Duncan McFhee's 1 min. 53 3/5 sec. in the half-mile; but these pale alongside the quarter-mile achievement, mainly because this is a distance that is not much encouraged in Scotland, and therefore, the opportunities for developing efficiency are few. Not since Halliwell, the Highland Light Infantry officer, have we had a finer quarter-mile than Stevenson's.

petitioners. Since this time it is reported that the Amer has had a new course made for himself at Jelalabad, that he has had it made without any bunkers at all, and that he has instituted a custom of having tea served on every green.

OLD-TIME RESTRICTIONS.
To revert to America. In a primitive way golf was played there in the seventeenth century, and, as in Britain, the earliest references to it that remain take the form of warnings of the punishments accruing to the players who departed from such severe restrictions as were imposed. It was not proclaimed what advantages would be yielded men who played, as is done to-day, but what penalties they should suffer if they played it when and where they should not. The times and places that were forbidden appeared to be many in proportion to those when the game might be enjoyed by those who liked it. Then, as now, and in America as in England, those who did not play golf rather looked down on the men who did play. As Mr. Ballour once remarked, it was a lucky thing they did, or there would soon be insufficient space to accommodate the golfers.

There were laws and ordinances of the New Netherlands of 1629 in which, because of a complaint by the burghers of Fort Orange and the village of Berwyck about the damage done to their windows, and the dangers to which they were exposed of being wounded by persons who played golf along the streets, the golfers were threatened with consequences to come. Clearly the game was played in South Carolina in 1788, for at that time an advertisement, appeared in the local newspaper: "Anniversary of the South Carolina Golf Club will be held at Williams' Coffee House on Thursday, the 29th inst., when members are requested to attend at 2 o'clock precisely that the business of the club may be transacted before dinner." In 1889 the following notice appeared in the Philadelphia Times (unfortunately only partly given): "No man should attempt to play golf who has not good legs to run with and good arms to throw with; as well as a modicum of brain power to direct his play. It is also, by the nature of the game itself, an aristocratic exercise, for no man can play who has not a servant at his command to assist him. It is probable that no sport exists in which the service of a paid assistant is so essential as in the national game of Scotland. The truth is that the servant is as essential to the success of the game as the player himself."

THE FAMINE IN RUSSIA. RUSSIAN RELIEF MEASURES.

The first admissions of a devastating famine in Russia which have been made in the new bulletins circulated in the Far East by the Rosta and Delta News Agencies appear in bulletins received yesterday and read as follows:—

Moscow, August 22nd.

All Russian Executive Committee has given vast powers to the famine relief committee in Soviet Russia, comprising sixty-three representatives from all classes. The committee is similar to a Red Cross organization and is self-governing. It is empowered to secure independently Russian and foreign foodstuffs, medicines and other articles, establish stations for distributing relief, enjoy priority in railway facilities, and to find employment for the stricken people. Donations and subscriptions, both in money and in kind, and Government grants are received by the committee. The activities of the committee are not subject to Government control, but the committee reports directly to the All-Russian Executive Committee. Organizing and administrative methods of the committee are determined at regular meetings. A publications department has been organized for issuing leaflets, appeals, bulletins, etc. Mr. Korolenko, the famous writer, has been elected honorary chairman of the department, and Mr. Maxim Gorky has been sent abroad as the sole representative. Mr. Kamenev has been elected chairman.

Moscow, August 2nd.

While abolishing food taxation in the famine-stricken provinces, the All-Russian Executive Committee has authorized the local authorities to collect taxes in parts of those provinces yielding a fair harvest for distribution among the sufferers.

Moscow, August 2nd.

In response to the Government's call for help in the famine districts, the "Centrosyus" (Central Co-operative Society) after a conference sent a declaration to the All-Russian Executive Committee, stating that they appreciate the problem caused by the famine in several provinces and demand the utmost exertions. The Centrosyus is ready to strain every effort for the relief of the unfortunate people.

Moscow, August 5th.

The Council of People's Commissars has issued a decree abolishing the requisitioning of meat, introducing instead a specified tax in kind. The total amount of meat to be taxed this year is six and a half million pounds (36 lbs. = 1 pound) whereas the amount requisitioned was formerly twenty-five million pounds. The amount of tax varies in the different districts. Districts where cattle are scarce are exempt from taxation. All owners are required to pay a certain tax on their cattle, sheep, and pigs, excepting those not fully grown.

DISARMAMENT QUESTION. BRITISH HOSTAGES.

Mr. Archibald Hurd in an article on the coming Conference on Disarmament shows how Great Britain has led in the limitation of naval armaments in the following paragraphs:—

- 1.—No capital ship has been laid down for five years.
- 2.—When the Armistice came, contracts for 817 vessels then in course of construction, including three capital ships of the Hood design, were cancelled, and the material which had been prepared was destroyed.
- 3.—Upwards of 200 ships of war of various types have been disposed of.
- 4.—The number of officers and men, which stood at 151,000 in 1914, will by the end of the year have been reduced to 131,700, including seamen, coastguard marines, as well as cadets and boys training.
- 5.—Whereas in 1914 this country had thirty-eight capital ships in full commission, the number has now been reduced to sixteen.
- 6.—The squadron in South American waters has been withdrawn and cruisers have been recalled from the North Atlantic and South African squadrons.
- 7.—One of the destroyer flotillas of the Atlantic Fleet has been placed in reserve.
- 8.—Two of the Royal dockyard are being closed.
- 9.—Eight more capital ships are being disposed of, reducing the number from thirty-eight to thirty (the intention being to keep fourteen of the older ones in reserve) and it is proposed to replace only four of these vessels.
- 10.—The two-power standard which this country has maintained for over a century, in theory if not in practice, has been abandoned, and the one-power standard, i.e., that our Navy should not be inferior in strength to that of any other Power—has been adopted. The Admiralty are interpreting the new standard "in no mechanical spirit nor with insistence upon numerical equality."
- 11.—The comparable British estimates, 1891-22—making allowance for the depreciation of the currency—amount to about £24,500,000, whereas in 1914-15 they stood at £53,500,000.

CRUSHING LABOUR DEFEAT IN QUEENSLAND.

The Queensland municipal elections recently, resulted in the complete defeat of the Labour party. The anti-Labour candidates secured approximately 500 seats as against only 30 seats for the Labour candidates. In all the cities and large towns every Labour candidate was defeated. Those who were successful in the smaller boroughs only secured election by the narrowest majorities. The elections were fought on adult suffrage, and, therefore, possess the significance of a Parliamentary contest.

OF THE LINKS—FORTY YEARS AFTER.

Comrades, leave me here a moment while I potter on the tee; Musingly the past recalling—"on in two and down in three." In the spring a brighter lustre shines upon the burnished creak; In the spring a golfer's fancy turns to fourteen rounds a week. In the "Eighties" here I gambolled, somewhat narrower round the waist, Cut the turf (and left behind me divots that were not replaced). For I drove into the distance, far as human eye could scan, Pitched along the perfect fairway, lightly touched the green and ran; Undismayed by thoughts of Bogey, undeterred by brake or whin. Deftly swung the limber masher, put approach-shots "on the pin." But the years bring Time's revenges; muscles stiffen, fingers crack; And I know, "Laburnum Annie," by the twinges in my back. O my Brassie! O my favourite! shattered on a casual flint. O the words of little meaning, though the thought's unfit for print. Comrades, Memory's door is jarring; I'll not leave it on the latch. For a sorrow's crown of sorrow is the thought that I was "scratch"!

THE PACIFIC CONFERENCE.

JAPAN'S REPLY TO THE INVITATION.

The Consul for Japan has kindly communicated to us the text of a Note sent to the United States Minister, copy of which has been telegraphed to the Consul by the Foreign Office in Tokyo. It reads as follows:

Your Excellency—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your Note of the 13th of this month in which you intimate the gratification of the President of the United States at the cordial response which has been accorded to his suggestion of a Conference on the subject of the limitation of armament and cognate topics and in which you communicate the President's invitation to participate in such Conference to be held at Washington on the 11th of November next on the subject of the limitation of armament, in connection with which the Pacific and Far Eastern Question will also be discussed.

In communicating to you, for transmission to the President the hearty and appreciative acceptance of this invitation by the Japanese Government, I would ask you to be good enough in the first place to say to Mr. Harding with what pleasure the Government see him take the initiative in this all-important matter. His great office, the pacific traction of your Republic and his own high personal qualification invest his act with a peculiar appropriateness which must be universally felt and recognised.

The peace and welfare of the world have long been the cherished object of solicitude to the Japanese Government and people. That attitude has not remained a platonic policy; it has been followed out in action. It results naturally from this pacific attitude towards world problems that the Government and people alike should warmly welcome the idea of the limitation of armament and the removal of the deadening burden on industry and cultural development which swollen and competitive armament create.

This movement is also completely sympathetic to the valuable suggestion advanced in your Note that it may well be desirable that the use of novel agencies of warfare should be controlled.

The discussion and removal of any cause which may exist and the arrival at an eventual agreement with regard to general principles and their application which will ensure friendship and good mutual understanding between nations are regarded as of great value and importance. My Government would emphasise prominently the vital interest which Japan has in the preservation of the peace of the Pacific and the Far East. She has devoted her utmost efforts towards securing its permanence, and its maintenance must always be to her a matter of prime concern. She therefore finds it to accord entirely with her inmost desires to reach in conference a measure of understanding which shall ensure peace being placed once and for all upon a permanent basis in these regions. It is earnestly hoped, therefore, in Japan that the Conference will secure really useful results and prove a practical success.

The Japanese Government gladly concurs in the proposal of the United States Government that the scope of the discussion of the Pacific and Far Eastern problems shall be made subjects of free exchange of views prior to the assembly of the Conference. They hope that they agenda of the Conference will in this way be arranged in harmony with a suggestion made in the Memorandum of the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs of July 26th, 1921, bearing on the same subject, in order that the labours of the Conference may proceed with the fullest measure of successful achievement.

The undersigned cannot conclude without again expressing the thorough and hearty sympathy of his Government with the thesis so clearly and justly stated in your Note of the crushing encumbrance and menace which modern armaments present to civilisation. No efforts can be too unremitting to reduce that menace and encumbrance. In full consciousness of this fact, the initiative of the President of the United States is warmly welcomed and deeply appreciated, and I would ask you to assure the President: I beg you, etc.

LONDON'S NEW DOCK.

LARGE ENOUGH TO ACCOMMODATE THE "MAURETANIA."

The new extension of the Royal Victoria and Albert Docks system, which the King opened with such ceremony the other day, is the largest work yet undertaken by the Port of London Authority and some idea of the increased facilities which it will give will be seen from the fact that the largest vessel which could be hitherto accommodated in the docks system was limited to about 10,000 gross tons, and that only at Tilbury, a distance of 28 miles below London Bridge. The new dock will permit of vessels up to 20,000 tons being berthed within 6 miles of the heart of the City. It will be as well, however, to dispel at once the idea, which always gains currency at such times, that big ships like the Mauretania or the Olympic will come up, 30,000 tons being, in fact, the Port of London Authority's own estimate of a comfortable-sized ship for these docks. This being so, the biggest would be something after the size of the Mauretania, which is just over the 30,000 tons.

The new dock does, however, bring big ships much nearer London and within easy cartage reach of the City. Ships will enter from the river through an entrance lock 600ft. long by 100ft. wide with a depth of water at high-water, ordinary neap tides, of nearly 42ft. Arrangements have been made for increasing the effective length of this dock, by means of a caisson, up to 910ft., or somewhere near the site of our mammoth liners, with a squeeze. The wet dock is 4,075ft. long, has an area of 64 acres, a depth of 33ft. and provides accommodation for about 14 big steamers. The equipment is said to make the dock the finest in the world. The deep-water cargo jetty has already been completed at Tilbury, and further extensions are contemplated there, including a deep-water passenger landing stage, which will vie with that on the Mersey.

INCOME TAX IN THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

A report is published on the working of the War Tax Ordinance, 1919, in the Straits Settlements since its inception and the Collector General of Income Tax says:

"As the tax being collected under the 1920 Ordinance is Income Tax, forming part of revenue and it is not likely that there will be any further War Tax legislation, I have also taken the opportunity of preparing figures showing complete results, up to March 31st, 1930, attained under War Tax Ordinance, 1917, 1918 and 1919." The following table is given in the report:—

Description of taxpayer.	1919	Ordinance, 3 years.
European, American and Eurasian	$1,002,021	$2,689,810
Chinese	1,434,350	4,063,638
Malay and Arab	91,965	206,202
Jew	96,096	223,616
Indian	231,941	539,983
Japanese	15,922	36,433
Others	30,064	97,483
Total	$2,902,383	$7,977,489
Add Registered Companies	1,286,083	4,443,141
	$4,188,466	$12,420,631

The 1919 figures as compared with the 1918 show a marked advance all round, except in two instances—(a) the fall in tax paid by Malays and Arabs and (b) the fall in the Malacca assessment.

These may both be traced, the Collector says, to the same cause, namely the poor results obtained from rubber growing in 1918 as compared with 1917. It will be remembered that the 1919 assessments are based on 1918 results, and the 1918 assessments on 1917 results. The poor returns from rubber estates, affected all three Settlements, but was not such a vital matter in Singapore and Penang as in Malacca. The contribution from Malays and Arabs in Singapore and Penang was slightly less than in the previous year, but it was in Malacca that the heavy fall took place. In Singapore and Penang, improvements in other directions were sufficient to counter-balance the effect of the poor rubber returns, and these Settlements also secured greater advantages from Tax collected for the first time from Foreign Shipping Companies than was the case with Malacca.

CATHOLICS AND THE BIBLE. THE AUTHORISED VERSION.

The Catholic Bible Congress meeting at Cambridge concluded its proceedings on July 19th. Apart from Mr. G. G. Coulton, University Lecturer in English, no non-Catholics took up the challenge of the congress to participate in the discussion. Mr. Coulton made a brief criticism at one of the lectures, but prior to the congress he had written a pamphlet in which he referred to the passage concerning the heavenly witnesses in 1st John, v. 7. He declared that the Catholic professors, although knowing the passage not to be genuine, dared not manifest their knowledge publicly for fear of being turned out of the Church. Father C. Lattey, Professor of Scripture at St. Bruno's College, replied to Mr. Coulton in detail. He declared that Catholic scholars treated the passage as an interpolation and that the accusation of dishonesty made against them was without foundation.

Father C. C. Martindale lectured on "The Person of Christ," in the course of which he said England had lost all belief about God. It had rejected the Church for the Bible, and had now ceased to read the Bible. Criticism had, however, advanced during the last generation, and the historical existence of Jesus Christ was now indisputable. A Catholic no longer had the same sense of isolation in accepting the New Testament as offering a coherent and truthful account of the person and doctrine of Christ.

In the afternoon the question as to the future reading of the Scriptures in the vulgar tongue was discussed. Canon William Barry said if they were to persuade the English nation to become Catholic they must prove to men they were not giving up the Word of God. It was almost impossible to measure the English nation's suspicion of the Roman Church in this matter. "If you are to convert England," he added, "you must convert it by means of the Holy Scripture." He urged the necessity of an inquiry to ascertain whether it was possible to adopt the English Authorised Version while safeguarding the official status and authority of the Latin Vulgate.

Monsignor Barton Brown said if the suggestion to adopt the Authorised Version were carried through it would be a stumbling block to converts who wanted an authority. If the Roman Church adopted the Protestant version would be converts would say, "Rome is beginning to give way." Let us wait a little longer and the Pope will let us keep our wives, and we shall get rid of Papal infallibility."

There was strong opposition to the suggestion, and no vote was taken.

RENTS ORDINANCE
LITIGATION.

WHEN ARE ALTERNATIVE PREMISES "AVAILABLE"?

"A great deal of litigation," arising out of the Rents Ordinance, was anticipated by Mr. Alabaster in his address to the Legislative Council, last month, on behalf of petitioners against the Bill, and the prophecy appears to be in process of fulfilment. Some cases will be heard in the Summary Court, in the present week, and others are foreshadowed.

If there is going to be a great number of these cases it looks as though it will be convenient to use algebraical symbols for the parties. When the litigants are Chinese, as in a case at present before the Puisne Judge, lawyers and shorthand-writers find their tongues (or pencils, as the case may be) skidding hopelessly amongst unpronounceable names. There is the tenant whom it is desired to eject; the new owner of the premises, who desires to eject him; the landlord of the "alternative premises" to which it is suggested the tenant can reasonably be asked to go, and there is, often, the man in possession of the "alternative premises" who, usually, refuses to budge. When all these parties, have four Chinese names the tangle speakers get into can be better imagined than described.

Why not agree upon a code thus:
Let "T" be the tenant;
Let "E" be the new owner who desires to eject;
Let "L" be the landlord of the "alternative premises"; and Let "P" be the man in possession who won't go.

These suggestions are respectfully submitted before the flood-gates of oratory are opened for another week. The case in which Mr. F. C. Jenkin (instructed by Messrs. Johnson, Stokes & Master) represents E (the Tai Tung Firm) and Mr. C. G. Alabaster (instructed by Messrs. d'Almeida and Masoh) represents T (the Fook Tung firm) was advanced a further stage, on Saturday morning. A new complication arose. L was called, and let down E rather badly. L was understood, at an interview on August 3rd, between the parties, that accommodation was available at L's place to T, but L now stated, in the witness box, that he would not accept T as tenant.

This led to a discussion as to how far the onus lay upon E to satisfy the Court that "alternative premises" were available to T. Mr. Alabaster submitted that the plaintiff (E) had failed. No. 98 was under the control of Chan Yue Ting and he had not offered it to the Fook Tung firm (i.e., L had not offered it to T.) Mr. Alabaster argued that "alternative premises" were not "available" within the meaning of the Ordinance, unless an order of the Court would put T in possession. After the evidence of L—just given to the Court—T would be on the street if His Honour gave judgment for the plaintiffs (E).

Mr. Jenkin: The Court has to be satisfied that the same amount of accommodation, in a domestic tenement, is available to T as they had in their former premises, where they only used two floors for domestic purposes.

The Judge: But what does "available" mean, that the defendants (T) have the right to a possession order, and can get it?

Mr. Jenkin: No, I don't think it means that.

The Judge: Then how do you put it?

Mr. Jenkin: That they "can have" two floors there.

The Judge: "Can have"—in what sense?

Mr. Jenkin: In the sense that any statement to the contrary is a "bluff." The two floors, available on August 3rd, are available now.

The Judge: In face of the landlord's statement that he is not prepared to grant a tenancy to the defendant and that the Court cannot, therefore, grant possession?

Mr. Jenkin: If you believe that is true, of course, that's the end of it.

The Judge: I may doubt his bona fides, but it is not essential that the plaintiff must call the landlord to say he is willing to let the tenancy?

Mr. Jenkin: No, I don't think it is. They are trying to hide from you that there are these available premises.

The Judge: Are you not asking me to act on suspicion, and not on evidence?

Mr. Jenkin: You have more than suspicion.

The Judge: There is his evidence, to-day, that he wants the premises for his co-related firms. I don't see how I can get over that.

Mr. Jenkin: If you accept that, you have no alternative.

The Judge: I have as many suspicions as you have.

Mr. Jenkin: Yes, I am sure the thing is a "ramp" of the first order. Mr. Jenkin went on to say that accommodation was "available" if it was in the market. It was a question of availability in fact and not in law. He quoted a Kensington case in which no accommodation on the books of house agents was held to be "available" to a tenant whose premises were wanted by his landlord.

The Judge said it would help him if Mr. Jenkin could show that it had been ruled that premises were proved "available" if they were vacant and if the owner did not intend to occupy them himself. At present, he felt one had to go further and not only prove those two things, but a third, intention by the landlord to let.

"HONGKONG DAILY PRESS."
AN APOLOGY AND A FOOTNOTE.

[CANTON INFORMATION BUREAU.]

CANTON, August 28th.

The Canton Information Bureau began to withdraw, with apologies, the charge made against the Hongkong Daily Press in a statement issued under date of yesterday, alleging the suppression of a statement prepared by Mr. Eugene Chen for the Bureau. The latter statement was published in yesterday's issue of the paper which reached the Bureau this morning. As the statement appeared in another Hongkong morning paper on Wednesday and had been released in time for publication on that day, the Bureau inferred from its non-publication in the Wednesday issue of the Daily Press that the latter had decided to suppress it. Responsible circles here are gratified to learn from this mistaken inference of the Bureau that no British paper in Hongkong would think of interfering with the legitimate rights of freedom of speech on a matter of public interest.

In publishing the statement prepared by Mr. Eugene Chen, the Daily Press has added the following editorial footnote: "It is essential to a complete understanding of this question to add that by a Treaty made between the Governments of China and Japan, signed at Peking on May 25th, 1915, the Chinese Government engaged to recognise all matters that may be agreed upon between the Japanese Government and the German Government respecting the disposition of the rights, interests and concessions which, in virtue of treaties or otherwise, Germany possesses vis-a-vis China in relation to the Province of Shantung. We suppose that there are few Treaties with China which Chinese politicians would not say were 'extorted in circumstances of diplomatic force majeure'."

Mr. Eugene Chen's comment on the foregoing footnote is appended: "The reference to the Treaty of May 25th, 1915, is not quite clear in its bearing on the point I desired to elucidate. The Treaty is one of two, based on the Twenty-One Demands, which Japan compelled the Chinese Government to sign under pressure of an ultimatum delivered on May 7th, 1915, threatening hostilities. My statement did not deal with the purely formal agreement concluded between the Japanese Government and the German Government as embodied in Section VIII of the Treaty of Versailles relating to Shantung. In the interests of history, I ventured to direct attention to a statement made by Mr. Lloyd George at a memorable meeting of the Council of Four, when it was decided—not by the German Government—but by Mr. Lloyd George, with the acquiescence of M. Clemenceau and President Wilson, to transfer to Japan rights in Shantung which had been leased to Germany but reverted to China on her entry into the war on the side of the Allies. And I desired to pillory Mr. Lloyd George's attempt to drag the British Empire into a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance by exploiting the Englishman's sense of fair play now that he realises that the 'goods' cannot be delivered by legitimate means. He says to-day that the Anglo-Japanese Alliance enabled England to secure Japanese assistance during the war, whereas he stated at Paris on April 22nd, 1919, at 4.30 p.m., that it was the Secret Agreement relating to Shantung, dated 18th February, 1917, which enabled England to secure the assistance of Japan. There is a short, ugly word in the Sassenach vernacular for that sort of inexactitude."

[The only comment which it seems necessary to make on this statement is that Japan had been assisting in the war more than two years before February, 1917.—Ed. H.D.P.]

MOTOR BOATS.

A NEW REGULATION.

The regulations made by the Governor in Council under Section 37 of the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1890, Ordinance No. 10 of 1890, on the 5th day of April, 1917, and published in the Gazette on the 8th day of April, 1917, as Government Notification No. 341, as amended by the regulation made by the Officer Administering the Government in Council on the 3rd day of October, 1918, and published in the Gazette on the 10th day of October, 1918, as Government Notification No. 381 are amended by the addition thereto of the following regulation:—

38. The master of every launch or motor boat when conveying passengers shall be responsible that such launch or motor boat is carefully steered and travels with reasonable expedition and shall permit any passenger travelling on such launch or motor boat not being a ferry to disembark at any place where such passenger can lawfully disembark without risk when requested by such passenger to do so.

Mr. Jenkin: I can show it was his intention to let on August 3rd and, except for his evidence to-day, that has never been gone back on. Ought his mental attitude to be the pivot of the case? I say it is not fit to be the pivot of any case.

The Judge: Still, the onus is on you. Mr. Jenkin: I quite agree. But the landlord has only to keep "mum," and say or do nothing, for his intention to be entirely a matter of conjecture. That makes things impossible. Then he goes into the box, there are only two alternatives—to let, or not to let. When he says he does not intend to let he must be lying and the truth must be that he intends to let. You cannot penalise me, if all possible evidence is adduced, on both sides, and that portion of it which would defeat me is not worthy of credence.

His Honour intimated that he would consider his judgment and notify counsel later.

EUROPEAN FINED FOR ASSAULTING A POLICE SERGEANT.

CROSS-SUMMONS DISMISSED.

The hearing took place, before Mr. R. E. Lindell, on Saturday morning, of the adjourned summonses against John Thompson, master mariner, staying at the Carlton Hotel, alleging disorderly conduct outside the Hongkong Hotel on the night of August 25th, and an assault upon an Indian police sergeant.

The defendant, who was represented by Mr. D. H. Blake (of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grist), cross-summoned the police sergeant for assault and using abusive language.

Mr. T. H. King, the Deputy Superintendent of Police, conducted the case for the prosecution.

Police Sergeant Nabi Bux, B346, said he had been 22 years in the force and was now on traffic duty. On August 25th, at 8.45 p.m., he was on general patrol duty near the Hongkong Hotel. The sergeant on duty there, L/S B135, asked him to stand by his post for a minute, and he did so. While there, he noticed a yellow chow bitch running under the Hongkong Hotel verandah. It was running after, and barking at two people; he saw it do this for some time. The witness stood by for two Europeans—the defendant and another. He went up to the two Europeans and said, in English: "Please catch this dog; biting my passengers." The answer he received was "Get away, you black—"

[The language is scarcely printable; the final noun was an aspersions upon the policeman's parentage.]

Mr. King: Who said that? The witness (pointing to the defendant): This gentleman. The witness went on to say that, in response to this, he said, again, in English: "Please you not abuse me; you get this dog." The defendant abused him, again, with bad language. For the second time, he said, "Why you abuse me, please!" Defendant said: "This is not my dog." Witness said: "Not your dog! I catch this dog and go police station." As he bent to catch the dog, and called it to him, he received a blow on his shoulder from the defendant. The witness was on the roadway at the time; the defendant came out from under the verandah and struck him. Defendant appeared to be about to strike another blow, but witness took hold of him and another constable came and also held him. Together, they took him to the police station. The dog followed, still barking and running at people. Defendant resisted them most of the way to the station. The witness said he did not, at any time, use any other words to the defendant beyond what he had said, nor did he abuse him in Hindustani.

Mr. King: During this altercation did the other European say or do anything at all?

Witness: No, he did not interfere. He took no part but came to the police station with us.

Before the defendant struck you that blow did you touch him at all?

In cross-examination, the witness denied that he threatened to shoot the dog or that he used objectionable language to the defendant.

Mr. Blake: I put it to you that you did, more than once, and used other words such as "twine."

Witness: No, I do not abuse Chinese. Should I use such language to an English gentleman?

P.C. B284 said the beginning of the incident. The Indian sergeant spoke to the European and pointed to the dog. Then he saw the sergeant bend down to the dog and the defendant struck him a blow. The sergeant caught hold of his arm and witness went up and took hold of the other arm. They took him to the police station.

Cross-examined: He had met the defendant before. The latter accompanied him to the station, a few days ago, and accused him of assaulting a coolie whom he had arrested.

Inspector Grant said that, on arrival at the police station, the defendant was "very excited" but did not appear to be under the influence of drink. There was no indication that he had been roughly handled by the police; his clothing was not disarranged.

Mr. King: Did he make any remarks to the Indian sergeant in the charge room?

Witness: He called him several very filthy names, several times; I had to speak to him about it.

Mr. King: Call a spade a spade and tell us what he said.

Inspector Grant repeated expressions similar to those already given by the Indian Sergeant. Defendant also said that if he got a chance at the Indian sergeant, outside, he would kill him. He mentioned that he wanted to make a charge against the police sergeant but he did not specify it.

THE DEFENCE.
Mr. Blake called the defendant. Defendant said he was a master mariner, staying at the Carlton Hotel. He had been on the China Coast for 18 or 17 years. On Thursday evening, at 8.30 o'clock, when standing outside the Hongkong Hotel, in Des Voeux Road, he noticed an Indian policeman he had taken to the police station a few days previously. The man pointed him out to a police sergeant and both of them came over and pointed, and laughed. They hailed another Indian sergeant and all three stood near him and laughed. A dog belonging to the Carlton Hotel, which usually followed him, was attracted by a piece of steak carried on a string by a Chinese woman. He caught the dog to his feet. The police sergeant said to him: "Is that your damn dog?" said to him: "No, get away from me; mind your own damn business." The police sergeant then said he would shoot the "damn dog," and he rejoined: "If you do, I will shoot your damn head off." Defendant added that he said that more as a joke than anything.

"Funny sort of joke," commented the Magistrate.

A PAWNBROKING PROBLEM.
HOW MUCH MAY A PAWNBROKER ASSUME?

Mr. M. K. Lo defended the proprietor of the Sai Cheong pawnshop, Yau-mat, who attended before Mr. E. E. Lindell, on Saturday, on a charge of neglecting to seize or detain a Chinese who pawned a European-made rain coat, worth $30, for $3.

The raincoat was part of property stolen from the house of Mr. H. C. Page, of Chatham Road, Kowloon, by the houseboy. The houseboy was caught and sentenced; the pawnbroker of the raincoat was found in his possession, and this led to the present proceedings.

Sgt. Murphy, in reply to the Magistrate, expressed the opinion that very few middle and lower class Chinese would wear an overcoat such as this.

Mr. Lo, however, suggested that "heaps" of raincoats were on sale at the large Chinese stores in Des Voeux Road and that many middle class people wore them.

It was elicited that, when arrested, the house boy was wearing singlet and trousers only, but Mr. Lo said the accountant told him that the pawnbroker was "dressed nicely" and he took him for one of the merchant class.

The Magistrate said that was rather strange; the accountant told the police he could not recognise the pawnbroker.

Mr. Lo also made the suggestion that a "hard up" European might send his "boy" to pawn things for him.

Inspector Aris thought such an occurrence was very rare.

Mr. Lo said he had members of the Portuguese community in mind.

In support of the claim that defendant had no cause to answer, Mr. Lo said it was not unusual for an article to be pawned for much less than its value by a person who only stood in need of a small sum. No notice of theft of a raincoat had reached the pawnbroker.

The Magistrate thought the circumstances placed the onus on the defendant to show that he took reasonable precautions.

The accountant of the pawnshop gave evidence that $3 was asked on the coat, but he only advanced $3.00. The man gave a Hongkong address. The witness admitted that the pawnbroker gave the name of a street which he knew did not exist, but it was, nevertheless, entered in the book.

The accountant was asked by the Magistrate to point out any other entry in his books showing that someone had come from Hongkong to pawn things in Yau-mat. He could point to no such entry, and the Magistrate told him that the mention of Hongkong should, therefore, have made him suspicious.

The Magistrate found the defence proved and fined the pawnbroker $25.

ROYAL DUTCH PETROLEUM COMPANY

The Board of Commissioners in their report to the shareholders submitted the balance-sheet and profit and loss account for the year ending 31st December, 1920, from which it appeared that a dividend of 40 per cent. could be paid with Article 31 holders. In accordance with Article 31 of the statutes a dividend of 41 per cent. had already been paid on the priority shares. An interim dividend of 15 per cent. was paid on the ordinary shares in January of this year, so that 25 per cent. could still be paid. They therefore recommended that, after payment of 4 per cent. on the preference shares and 41 per cent. as mentioned above on the priority shares, the dividend for 1920 be fixed at 40 per cent. on the ordinary shares of £1,000—per share of £1,000—and £400—per share of £1,000—

The recommendation was approved.

three or four times. He denied striking the policeman; he had more sense than to do that, though he had great provocation. He admitted using bad language to the officer, after the latter had abused him. He had remonstrated with both police officers, before, for harsh treatment of Chinese.

Cross-examined: The last ship he commanded was the Chief; he had not commanded a ship for 21 years; had been staying at the Carlton Hotel since April 26th; before that in England for two years. He could have had employment but would not accept the positions going. As a white man, he objected to being taken to the station by Indians; in India only European officers were allowed to arrest Europeans.

Alex. Livingston Woods, ship's mate, staying at the Carlton Hotel, said he was with the defendant at the time of the incident. He drew away some paces when the sergeant spoke, not wishing to be involved in the matter. He could not give the exact words used. The first bad language he heard was used by the sergeant. Defendant did not strike the officer, he walked up to him to get a closer view of his number and the sergeant then seized him and shook him.

Mr. Blake, addressing the Magistrate, said that there was absence of motive on the defendant's part, but the police might have acted out of spite, on account of protests against their conduct made by the defendant.

The Magistrate: I find both charges against John Thompson proved. I fine him $15 on the first summons, and $25 on the second. I find the charges against the police sergeant not proved and dismiss them both.

HONGKONG, AUGUST 29th, 1921

JAPAN IN CHINA AND SIBERIA.

A very interesting diplomatic Note which Japan has recently communicated to the Government of the United States on the subject of the Pacific Conference will be found in another part of to-day's issue. Japan is facing the Conference with a divided air. On the one side she is willing enough to join in a conference with the other Powers, if only to show her equality with them; but on the other she fears lest questions should be raised at the Conference which she will find it awkward or impossible to discuss. It is for the latter reason that there have been so many manoeuvres on her part to discover what the Conference is to be about—more particularly that part of it which is to deal with Pacific problems. Are the questions which were decided at the Peace Conference at Versailles to be again raised? These Japan regards as faits accomplis—things done and finished with beyond control.
America, however, as she has not signed the Peace Treaty, by no means regards such questions as settled. And the difficulty is that America is calling the Conference and is arranging the programme. Various suggestions have been made as to the settlement of all outstanding questions before the Conference meets, and there have been numerous propaganda messages flying around, stating that the Yap problem was practically settled, that China was now willing to negotiate on the Shantung question, and that the evacuation of Siberia was now on the point of consummation. But the Yap negotiations continue to drag on, America disputing the whole question of the mandates and refusing to be pacified with possession of the cable. As for the Shantung question, the fact being that the Peking Government, especially in view of the civil commotions, would not last long if it attempted to open any negotiations.

On the other hand, there is every evidence that China is preparing most assiduously, to bring before the Conference not only this case, but also all other cases where infringements on her sovereignty have been made by foreign Powers. China, it has been pointed out, has not been invited to attend the Conference; only to send representatives to it.
This is a somewhat subtle distinction which may mean that China is to have no voice in its decisions. If this be the case China will remain the outcast among nations. It is probable, however, that no such exclusion is intended, but that the difference in wording was devised so as not to hurt Japan's feelings.

Then there is the Siberian question. The repeated assertions that the civil authorities in Japan have put their foot down and are determined on evacuation, however much the military authorities may object, has been too often repeated to allow of other than cynical suggestions as to the exact nature of the co-ordination of the firm of SPENLOW and JONES. This shifting of responsibility is not too old a trick to prevent its effective use, and the military party can always point to the disturbed state of the country and the absence of any stable Government to carry on negotiations with, while itself doing its best to see that no stable Government has a chance of coming into existence. Japan, of course, will only retire from Siberia after negotiations;
just as she will not recede Shantung without negotiations; and there being no one in Siberia strong enough to negotiate with, the evacuation is postponed again and again. If the other Powers object to the Japanese occupation of Siberia, they have only themselves to blame, since it was on their invitation Japanese troops were sent there, a fact which Japan is not backward in pleading.

As to what line Japan will take at the Conference, it seems very probable that she will seek to utilise it in the same way as she utilised the Peace Conference, that is to get her "rights" confirmed. Whether the racial equality motion will again be introduced as a camouflage to cover what she really wants remains to be seen. There were reports that it would not be used again.
But in this case Japan has plenty of other questions of a like general nature to fall back upon. Thus, there is the question of Japanese immigration. She does not believe that the United States and the British Dominions will agree to unrestricted Japanese immigration, but by pleading for it very earnestly and making it the chief plank in her programme, she may very well assuage her incomprehensible demand for a confirmation of her "rights" in Shantung, or a general mandate to do what she likes in Manchuria and Siberia. It is, therefore, almost certain that, whether directly or indirectly, Japan will seek to get the Conference to confirm all her "rights" in China, Manchuria, Mongolia and Siberia. Whether she will be so successful with Yap is doubtful. All the present indications show that America is determined to secure Yap, and this is not altogether to Japan's disadvantage, since it gives her something to bargain with. Only what she obtains in return must be with the price, and this price can only be obtained at the expense of some other country. The Conference, therefore, as far as Japan is concerned, is considered as an opportunity for bargaining, and for hard bargaining too.
Whether the peace of the Pacific can be established by this method is not a matter which is deemed worth studying.
At any rate a redistribution of "rights" will keep all parties satisfied for a year or two, and this is all that can be hoped for.

Owing to the recent heavy rains the road from Laichikok to Castle Peak is closed.

Owing to unsettled weather, the Kowloon Cricket Club concert, announced for Saturday night, was postponed.

It has been decided to admit women to Hongkong University and the first girl student has already been registered.

No fewer than fourteen lots of Crown land (including the four lots on which the old Post Office and Supreme Court stand) are advertised for sale by auction. Six of these are on Mount Davis.

The South Staffords go from Singapore to Maymyo relieving the 2nd K.O.R.
(Lancasters) Regiment, while the 2nd Wiltshire go from Hongkong to Bangalore in the Spring relieving the 2nd Dorsets.

The financial statement of the Colony for the month of May, published in the current Gazette shows a revenue for the month of $1,484,925.43 and an expenditure of $1,483,591.46. The balance of assets over liabilities is given as $5,373,420.44.

A very desirable public improvement is foreshadowed in the Government Gazette
by a call for tenders for the construction of a reinforced concrete public pier, 160 feet 8 inches long by 41 feet 4 inches wide, and approach at Queen's Statue Square.

New Regulations made by the Government under the Dogs Ordinance, 1883, are published in the Government Gazette. The regulations deal mainly with the importation of dogs into the Colony and the precaution to be taken in regard to rabies.

Juryman who assemble for the Criminal Sessions, to-day and next week, will be gratified to find that the hard benches of the jury box, in the Supreme Court, have been replaced by comfortable, high-backed cane-seated arm chairs. Members of the Press hope that it will be their turn next.

Improvements at Government House for which tenders are being invited include the erection, on the site of the existing stables and outbuildings, of a garage, laundry and custodian's quarters, and the forming of a new carriage drive involving alterations to the eastern entrance.

Ten robbers, armed with rifles and revolvers, broke into the Kwong Wo Yuen grocery shop, in Leungshapwan village, Shaikung district, on Thursday night.
They stole a large quantity of clothing, jewellery, money and provisions, and took away with them the proprietor, and his son, whom they are holding for ransom.

Revised rates of postage on parcels posted in Hongkong to various parts of the world are to come into force on September 1st. A list occupying a couple of pages appears in the Government Gazette. The rates to the United Kingdom are not affected by the revision, but the list includes a number of British Colonies and possessions in Africa and America.

Certain Chinese now in London, says a London paper, are demanding that the value of two sacred golden bells taken from the Temple of Heaven in Peking during the Boxer rising shall be restored to the temple authorities. It is stated that the bells were found under piles of rubbish, and that one of them was taken by British troops to Delhi and there melted down, the gold being sold for $25,000. The interested Chinese now point to the special clause in the Versailles Treaty whereby the ancient astronomical instruments looted by the Germans during the capture of Peking were returned to China, and demand that the sacred bells, or their value, shall also be restored to the Temple of Heaven.

MERCHANT SEAMEN'S GOOD FORTUNE.DISABILITY ALLOWANCES INCREASED.

The Admiralty has informed, the Imperial Merchant Service Guild that the revision of scales applicable under the Injuries-in-War Compensation Act has now been authorised. This act is practically identical with the war risks scheme of compensation for merchant seamen.

The Guild some time ago drew the attention of the Admiralty to the fact that the Board of Trade had decided to revise the war risks scheme in accordance with the recommendations of the Select Committee on Pensions as follows:
(1) The rate upon which disability allowances are calculated to be increased by 40 per cent, the minimum allowances in case of total disability increased from 25s. to 40s. weekly. (2) The fixed maximum allowance for each child increased to 23s per annum.

The Admiralty state that these improvements have now been made in the Injuries-in-War Compensation Act. This should benefit a considerable number of Merchant Service officers and men who are in receipt of allowances under the Act, as well as the dependants of those who lost their lives while serving under

IRISH CRISIS.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S REPLY TO MR. DE VALERA.

LONDON, August 26th.

Mr. Lloyd George has replied emphasizing the Government's profound disappointment at Mr. de Valera's letter of August 26th. The Premier says that the Government proposals went to the limit of their powers with a view to reconciling British and Irish interests. They have been approved as liberal by the whole of the civilized world, even in quarters sympathetic to the extreme Irish claims. Mr. de Valera's letter, Mr. Lloyd George says, does not recognise this, and further negotiations will be futile unless definite progress is made towards the acceptance of the basis.

The reply again emphasises the fact that the fullest liberty was offered to Ireland, which even States in America do not enjoy. They fulfil Mr. de Valera's wish as regards government by the consent of the governed, but Mr. de Valera is additionally, now claiming what was previously disowned by famous Irish leaders from Grattan to Redmond.

Mr. Lloyd George declares that the physical and historical inter-dependence of Ireland and Great Britain makes complete political and economic separation impossible, and says that the continuance of the present course must lead to a rupture of the peace. The Government is prepared to give ample time to secure peace, but it cannot prolong a mere exchange of Notes. It is essential that some definite and immediate progress should be made towards the basis, upon which further negotiations can usefully proceed.

Mr. Lloyd George concludes: "Your letter unfortunately shows no such progress. In this, and my previous letters, I set forth considerations which must govern the attitude of the Government in any negotiations undertaken. If you are prepared to examine how far these considerations can be reconciled with the aspirations you represent, I shall be happy to meet you and your colleagues."

PREMIER'S WARNING TO SOUTHERN IRELAND.

LONDON, August 26th.

Mr. Lloyd George, acknowledging the Freedom of Barnsley, said that Great Britain had risen above all prejudices and had proposed unprecedented terms to Ireland, which commended themselves to the whole civilised world. He trusted that common sense will prevail. "We cannot countenance separation," he said. "It will lead to civil war in Ireland. If Southern Ireland is not satisfied with freedom and insists on separation, all hope of accommodation must be abandoned."

EARLIER CABLES.

SINN FEIN'S DEFIANCE OF GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, August 26th.

There were unprecedented scenes of excitement in Dublin at the opening of the public session of Dail Eireann, the public anxiety to know whether Mr. de Valera's reply meant peace or war being intense. The session opened without Mr. de Valera's resignation, on the ground that they had now a newly-elected Dail. Amid enthusiasm, Mr. de Valera was re-elected President.

In his speech Mr. de Valera referring to his colleagues in the Cabinet, declared that they worked as a team and intended to continue to do so. The English, who thought they were going to divide Ireland, were going to be disappointed. Whatever happened, Ireland would face her enemies as a united nation. Mr. de Valera read a letter from Mr. Lloyd George, adding that he did not intend to comment on it but he declared: "We cannot change our position because it is fundamentally sound and just. On that rock we shall stand."

MOPLAH BISING IN INDIA.

MURDER OF EUROPEANS AND LOOTING.

LONDON, August 27th.

An official statement, of August 24th, says that military operations in connection with the Malabar disturbances, are progressing satisfactorily.

It transpires that a mob of 2,000, on August 20th drove in the Tirurangudi police, and attacked a Leinster platoon. The mob was dispersed with machine-guns, but Mr. Rowley and Lieutenant Johnston got separated. Their bodies were subsequently recovered and were found to be terribly mutilated. The railway station and the Post Office at Parappanangudi were sacked, and the line was cut.

The situation is now as follows: A detachment of troops at Malapuram is isolated but "all well." The line has been cut at Kuttippulam. The road is blocked. Bridges have been broken. A number of Government offices have been gutted. Two British soldiers, one European and fifteen police and local officials of Tirur have been taken prisoners.

The warship Comus arrived at Calicut on August 26th. The situation is quiet, but looting and murder of Hindus at Waluvand and Ponnani Taluks are reported. A relief party has gone to Malapuram.

A message from Calicut (says Reuter's Bombay correspondent) states that fanatics entered the Puleisengode Estate and beheaded a European in the bungalow. It is reported that Mr. Readman, another European, has been murdered, and his body thrown into the river. Looting continues.

HEAVY MOPLAH CASUALTIES.

MADRAS, August 27th.

The Malabar District has been proclaimed a military area. The Magistrate, Mr. Batty, with a force, went to Pattambi on August 22nd. From Palghat, on leaving the train, he proceeded on foot to meet a crowd of advancing Moplahs.

Mr. Batty warned that anyone found on the railway was liable to be shot, but the crowd made a rush. Whereupon, an order was given to fire at them with Lewis guns. The casualties are not known, but they must have been heavy.

The force returned to Shoranur, being replaced by cavalry from Bangalore. Later, in the evening, news arrived that a gang of Moplahs was marching towards Cotaparam with the object of attacking the Sub-Magistrate and the Treasury.

Mr. Batty, with a captain and thirty men of the Dorsets, with two machine-guns, reached Cotaparam in time and patrolled the town.

The police station at Cherapalchery was attacked yesterday, and all records were burnt.

The Sub-Treasury at Perintalamanna was looted, and Rs. 8,000 stolen, while at the Munshi's Court, all records were destroyed. Consternation prevails in Southern India, though the public so far have not been molested.

GOVERNMENT PREPARES FOR ACTION.

LONDON, August 27th.

"The Daily Telegraph" understands that owing to the serious character of the Malabar rebellion and the possibilities of a general spread of disorder, the Government of India, with Mr. Montagu's concurrence, has decided to take action against certain prominent personages held responsible for the greater part of the recent troubles in India. It is felt that the limit of Government patience has been reached. The journal understands that the authorities are quite prepared for fresh efforts at disorder as the outcome of the preventive action now decided on.

MOPLAH LOOT TREASURY AND SET FREE GAOL-BIRDS.

CALCUT, August 26th.

The Moplahs looted the Treasury at Ernad, and secured six lakhs of rupees. They liberated the gaol-birds and forced two prisoners and a warder to Mohammedianism. They attacked a motorbus, and killed two persons.

15,000 MOPLAHS IN MANJIRI.

CALCUT, August 25th.

The Moplahs, at Ernad it is reported, are looting Hindu houses and extorting large sums from Hindu landlords in intimidatory fashion. Fifteen thousand rioters are reported to be in Manjiri, of whom a large band entered the Thrikolluk Temple on the Hill, which was the scene of previous outbreaks. It is expected that the rioters would take refuge there, when they are rounded up. Another temple was entered near Tanur, and a golden image, with costly jewels, was carried off. All the culverts on the Calicut-Manjiri road have been demolished.

Twenty-two motor lorries of British troops have left for Ernad. A party of Congress workers has, also, left, for the purpose of pacifying the fanatics.

EARLIER CABLES.

REASSURING NEWS.

LONDON, August 26th.

The latest information of the General Staff shows the situation at Calicut to be quiet. The detachment at Malapuram has not been further attacked. A force is moving to its relief from Calicut, whence the railway to the south is being cleared. Business continues in the cleared Malabar and Ernad districts. Advanced troops sent from Podanur as far as Pattambi report that the situation is normal. The line is clear of Moplahs. The workmen on the bridge over the Cauvery at Erode are reported to be in a state of unrest.

CANADIAN RAILWAY SYSTEM.

GRAND TRUNK DIRECTOR AD-VOCATES REORGANISATION.

OTTAWA, August 26th.

Sir Joseph Flavelle, director of the Grand Trunk Railway, has issued an optimistic statement in regard to the eventual success of the national railway system. He suggests the formation of a national railway with a capital of $750,000,000, of which the Government should take $500,000,000 in payment of the existing advances to the various systems acquired. Sir Joseph predicts success if good sense prevails in the management of the national railways and the Canadian Pacific Co. can work together and avoid unnecessary multiplication of services.

GERMAN EX-MINISTER
ASSASSINATED.HERR ERZBERGER PIERCED WITH TWELVE REVOLVER SHOTS.

BERLIN, August 26th.

Herr Erzberger, the ex-Finance Minister and vice-President, has been murdered. A previous attempt was made on his life in January of last year.

The body was discovered near Griesbach, Baden, pierced with twelve revolver shots.

MOTIVE OF THE CRIME.

Herr Erzberger was journeying from Griesbach to Hochelkrois, accompanied by a member of the Central Reichstag, Herr Dies, when attacked by two men who fired, killing Herr Erzberger and wounding Herr Dies. The crime is believed to be connected with the recent violent pan-German campaign against Herr Erzberger as the supposed real author of the present Chancellor's policy.

The pan-Germans believed that Erzberger was preparing to return to public life, whence he had disappeared since his libel action against Herr Helfferich (who had preceded him as Finance Minister and Vice-Chancellor).

LATEST CABLES.

ARREST OF TWO STUDENTS.

BERLIN, August 26th.

Two students have been arrested at Offenbach. They are suspected of murdering Herr Erzberger.

Labour organisations and political parties are strongly urging the Government to end the Chauvinist agitation, to which Herr Erzberger's murder is attributed. The Government has forbidden a festival at Potsdam arranged by Pan-Germans to celebrate the German victory at Tannenberg over the Russians in the recent war.

The wreckage of a missing London-Brussels aeroplane has been picked up between Calais and Gravelines, three miles at sea.

The aeroplane evidently caught fire. Boats and submarines are searching for survivors.

It is believed that the lost aeroplane is the Goliath carrying goods and mail. The pilot is missing. There were no passengers.

LONDON, August 26th.

The London-Brussels air mail exploded in mid-air off Calais at midday and fell into the sea. A mail-bag has been picked up. The machine is believed to be Belgian owned. There is no news of survivors.

AMERICAN-GERMAN TREATY
CRITICISM OF FRENCH JOURNALS.

PARIS, August 26th.

WITHDRAWAL FROM THE RHINE.

WASHINGTON, August 27th.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH COM-MUNICATION WITH CHINA.STATEMENT BY THE BRITISH POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

In the House of Commons, on July 14th, Mr. Hurd asked the Postmaster-General whether the Chinese Government has entered into an agreement with the American General Company and the Radio Corporation for the erection of high-power stations in China, which will bring Washington into direct communication with Peking; whether he is aware that by this means the 800 daily newspapers of China will be provided with a cheap and steady flow of world news through American channels; and what comparable British news services will be available in the Far East under the British Government's scheme?

Mr. Kellaway (in a written reply): The question of wireless telegraphy in China is at present the subject of his diplomatic communications between his Majesty's Government and the Chinese and other Governments concerned. I understand that no such agreement as that referred to by the hon. member is in existence; but I would point out that the receipt in China of news sent out by wireless stations in other countries depends upon the existence in China of suitable receiving stations, and not of high-power stations capable of transmitting to other countries. If such receiving stations exist they would be able to receive news from stations of the proposed Imperial Chain—e.g., Hongkong, Singapore, and possibly India—in the same way as from stations in other countries.

Pronounced dead by two well-known Colombo doctors Mr. Baron de Livera, of the Anchorage, Station Road, Wellawatte, was paid all the customary attentions due to a deceased person. His head feet and hands were closed, and it was not until two or three hours later that the supposed dead man opened his eyes and, turning to one of his sons, asked that the doctor might be called. The surprise and delight of the relatives may well be imagined and on inquiry at the Anchorage on August 26th, a Times of Ceylon representative was informed that Mr. Baron de Livera is now making a rapid recovery. A man of independent means, Mr. Baron de Livera is well-known in Colombo and the news of his extraordinary experience has created widespread interest.

PARIS FASHION NOTES.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT, ISABEL RAMSAY.)

Paris, July 11th.

Some years ago, when women bared their necks and uncovered their ankles to the chilly blasts, there was a wild outcry from the fearful and the puritan-minded, who predicted nothing but evil from such a course. An increased mortality list from pneumonia and a future generation of weaklings as a result of the folly of the mothers of that day were amongst the dire warnings uttered by those who took the matter sufficiently to heart. That is a good many years ago now, and results have rather shown the contrary effect of this breaking away from the coddling and swathing ideals of the Victorian age.

Mothers now-a-days not only wear far less clothing than they used to, but more and more they are shortening the garments of their children. A frock for a little girl, to be in the fashion, must not reach anywhere near her knees; rather, it must appear to be more an afterthought than anything else, and only hang a few inches below her sash or belt and show, as she walks, dainty underwear underneath, cut on even more short and skimpy proportions than her frock. A small boy, whose mother wishes him to express the last note in ideas of fashion, is allowed to show not only his knees but many inches of his small legs above as well. Such notions are all very well when carried out during the Spring or Summer, but one sees in the Bois and along the Champs Elysees youngsters looking like little top-heavy barrels mounted on a long expanse of two legs, more often than not perfectly blue with the cold. Following that law of contradiction which all women seem to delight in, they cover up their children's necks and even add capes and necklets of fur, seemingly oblivious to the fact that the rest of their body, from the waist down, is practically devoid of covering. Arms, however, are left bare, only the tiniest of sleeves, if any, being favoured.

About December, when Winter has begun to set in earnest, French mothers go to the opposite extreme and swaddle children's legs in leather and woollen gaiters that reach well above the knee, which they envelop in a sort of cap. There are even garments worn by girls that are a combination of trousers and gaiters; the model they are copied from is, perhaps, that of the trousers worn by dandies of the 1830 period, the top part being rather full and the gaiter part below the knee fitting tight into the leg and fastening under the shoe with a strap. Models of this kind are made of thick cloth and prove an excellent means for defying the coldest of winds and keeping their small wearers cosily clad, although, at first sight, they look quaint. For the young baby they are the garment above all others, that is included in a layette, as they not only combine pilcher, gaiter and sock in one, but they are a far more practical means of keeping baby warm when he is at the rebellious age of wanting to kick off his clothes; in this case, of course, they are knitted in a white wool.

As coloured bloomers to match a frock have quite gone out of fashion, these trousers-gaiter combinations take their place to some extent and provide a bright patch of colour under a dark frock trimmed with embroidery worked in tones to harmonise. In place of bloomers, little white garments are worn, these being very dainty but rather simply trimmed with scallops bound with coloured washing tape, hand embroidery, or fine white net in bands which is button-holed on. Lace is seldom seen on children's lingerie; in fact, little trimming of any description, and only that which is a reflection of refinement and good taste, is used.

Expensive fabrics such as silk, satin, taffetas and crepe de Chine will take the place of woollen and washing materials during the coming season. The note in everything will be inclined towards the luxurious and showy. Thus, frills and flounces, flowers and ribbons, and excessive embroidery will characterise the styles chosen, and the brightest of shades will form colour schemes for the apparel of the younger set. Not only will bright red and rose shades, yellow, orange and deep blue tints predominate, but checks and stripes that are a mixture of all these with black or white added as well. Green has had its day to such an extent that it will not even be worn by the kiddies now. For party wear there are very quaint little frocks in black and navy blue taffetas, modestly trimmed with a spray of flowers and flowing streamers. Hats will be made of the same materials as the frock, and be trimmed profusely with flowers and streaming ribbons. The shape will be inclined to droop over the face. Dainty hats will also be made of ribbon, strips of fairly broad ribbon being used, or else narrow ribbon gathered and twisted in a dozen different ways.

For boys, too, there will be hats made from the same cloth as the coat, and, in the place of frocks of their sisters made of expensive material, there will be jolly-looking sweaters hand-knitted in bright shades of wool. There will also be stout, heather mixture socks turning back just under the knee to show a top worked in fantastic colours and design and to lend a sporting air to the ensemble, with tan brogue shoes to match. In summer these will be replaced by sandals, boots for the moment having completely disappeared.

Grown-ups continue to smother their clothes with every conceivable kind of trimming, nothing, apparently, being too simple or too bizarre to serve the purpose. The latest development is to have frock, hat and bag trimmed to match. Navy blue taffetas frock, trimmed with innumerable rows of tiny rucked cerise ribbon, will be worn with a toque entirely covered with a similar trimming, and the bag to go with these will also be a mere foundation of primary material hidden with row upon row of rucked ribbon to match both.

A simply-cut gown will be lavishly embroidered with beads, and be worn with a hat and bag treated in the same way. Buttons, shells, jet, raffia and sequins are all utilised on hat and bag as well as on frock. A new craze which has just made its appearance is that of hand-painting as a means of trimming. Many of the season's latest models are in fine straw, and their only trimming is a garland or bunch of flowers hand-painted on to crown and brim. To match these there are ivory taffetas sun-shades, on which is painted a similar design, and daintiest of hand-bags ornamented to match. For evening wear, there are satin shoes of every colour, the top cap of which is trimmed with a painted spray of flowers, a couple of pterodactyls, a bright-plumaged bird, or even a scrap of landscape.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

London, July 21st.

THE CHINA ASSOCIATION MEETING.
The high opinion entertained for Mr. Frederick Anderson as Chairman of the China Association in London by the members of that body was well illustrated at the annual meeting. This was, as usual, held in the old, oak-panelled room in which the directors of the P. & O. Company are accustomed to foregather in Threadneedle Street. This year there was a good attendance, due, perhaps, to the fact that the business included the election of a new Chairman. Mr. Anderson, who presided, made a long speech which he had obviously prepared with great care, and dealt with outstanding questions of the day which have a special interest for the British community in China and also for the Chinese people.

Mr. Anderson has been Chairman of the Association since 1914. In the ordinary way according to the rules he could not have held the office for more than four years; but, having regard to the exceptional circumstances of the times through which we have been passing as a result of the world war, the Committee suspended the rule and retained his services. A warm tribute was paid by several subsequent speakers to the able manner in which the retiring Chairman has discharged his duties. "I have a very difficult man to follow," was Mr. Laidlaw's remark as he returned thanks for his election as Chairman in succession to Mr. Anderson. He added that he had followed him in the East as Chairman of the Municipal Council at Shanghai, and he therefore knew what he was saying on that subject.

THE PRESIDENCY.
There was a little flutter of excitement over the election of the new President of the Association. Mr. Anderson had come to the meeting prepared to move that Sir John Jordan be elected, and indeed he proposed this resolution before anybody else in the room could intervene as soon as the item in question was reached on the agenda. He referred to Sir John Jordan's long connection with China as the British Minister at Peking, and also to some of the services he has rendered. The motion was formally seconded, whereupon, to the surprise of the meeting, Mr. G. B. Dodwell promptly rose and said he deemed it necessary to submit an amendment. There was a tense moment while those present wondered who was to be put forward as a rival to Sir John Jordan for the Presidential chair; but Mr. Dodwell dismissed all criticism by saying he had consulted Sir John, who agreed that the honour ought to be conferred upon Mr. Anderson.

The voting on the proposal to elect Mr. Anderson was unanimous, and the result was declared amid hearty applause. Mr. Dodwell genially remarked: "You can't have your own way to-day, Sir." In conversation with some of the members after the meeting I found that there was a feeling of satisfaction with the appointment of Mr. Anderson, whose ability and zeal command respect on all sides.

QUAKER MISSIONARY ON CHINA.
Mr. Isaac Mason, a Quaker Missionary who is working under the auspices of the Chinese Christian Literature Society, has arrived here on an extended holiday, and he has been telling an interviewer that in spite of the ban on opium it is grown all over the Republic. The local military commanders flout the edicts issued from Peking on the subject, says Mr. Mason, and wink at the cultivation of the poppy because they receive bribes from local farmers. No doubt the anti-opium people in this country will seize upon this statement as to the alleged use of the forbidden drug, and make some sort of capital out of it.

Of greater interest is Mr. Mason's account of the distribution of copies of the Bible printed in the Chinese language. This is being done throughout the country. A Bible Dictionary of two volumes has run through an edition of 5,000, and this success has led to a project for the publication of an encyclopaedia of religion and ethics, which will, it is said, contain about two million characters. The Society is also engaged in printing translations into Chinese of general literature, such as "The Swiss Family Robinson," and "Lamb's Tales." Mr. Mason states that there is a demand for English classics, not only in the domain of fiction but in philosophy and ethics.

JAPANESE POLITICIANS.
A party of eight Japanese politicians belonging to the Progressive Party, in the Diet arrived in London this week after a tour in the United States, where they went as guests of American Members of Parliament who visited Japan a year ago.

Mr. Takao Tanaka, the Member of the Diet representing Tokio, is at the head of the deputation, who are anxious to study the state of British public opinion on disarmament. It is understood the Japanese will endeavour to get into touch with some of our leading public men, and they are professedly eager to help on the day when an agreement on the subject may be reached by the leading Powers. Later in the summer half the delegates will proceed to Stockholm to attend the Inter-Parliamentary Conference to be held there.

According to Mr. Tanaka, popular opinion in Japan is in favour of putting a check upon the militarists. He hopes for good results from the Proposed Conference suggested by President Harding on the problems affecting the Far East generally.

The United States, where he is no stranger, and will then go on to New Zealand and Australia. He intends subsequently to visit Japan and China, in order, as his own journals put it, that he may study the questions that now occupy the minds of readers on your side, including the Pacific problem. I happen to know that he will use his influence to promote the movement for sending young Chinese to this country to be educated.

His Lordship travels in state like a king, and he intends to write impressions of his tour for the Daily Mail. I shall be vastly surprised if in the near future more prominence is not given to Chinese affairs—and particularly the point of view of the British in China—in the Northcliffe Press than has been the case hitherto. And of course, that would be all to the good.

THE HEAT WAVE.

It is half a century or more since this country experienced such a spell of hot weather as has been the case this year. Some of the experts say we have never had a dry season so far as the present one. There has been no rain for a couple of months. All over England the pastures are the colour of hay, without a vestige of green; the crops, with the single exception of wheat, are a partial failure; and reports generally show that water supplies are running dangerously short.

In spite of the intense heat, the glass showing over 90 in the shade some days, people appear unable to adapt themselves to the novel conditions. There are as many hot-meat dishes in the restaurants and hotels as if we were in mid-winter. With regard to clothing it is much the same. "The man in the street" makes no concession beyond leaving off his waistcoat, but as he then wears his jacket buttoned up there is not much gained in comfort or coolness. A friend home on leave from China told me in conversation this week that this conservatism of the Englishman struck him most forcibly. He longed for the sartorial freedom he was used to in China—H.B.
